

Last year, Delphi Forums' Terms of Service (TOS) Office determined that an Etiquette Hell rule implied that messages posted in the forum could be freely reposted contrary to Delphi TOS rules prohibiting reuse. The forum host, Jeanne Hamilton, believed that there was no such implication and in any event assured the TOS Office that she did not, at any time, violate Delphi's TOS rules on republication. Even though Ms. Hamilton disagreed with TOS Office's interpretation, she willingly and satisfactorily revised the Etiquette Hell rule.

Delphi Forums unequivocally states that whatever conversations were exchanged between Ms. Hamilton and the TOS Office, these conversations were mutually focused on the protection and clarification of the rights of forum members. At no time did Delphi Forums intend to state or imply that Etiquette Hell had engaged in any illegal activity or otherwise insult or disparage Ms. Hamilton or her forum. Delphi Forums apologizes for any belief or impression to the contrary. Ms Hamilton and Etiquette Hell are valued members of the Delphi Forums community and Delphi Forums looks forward to maintaining its good relationship with them.

Signed this 3rd day of October, 2006,

Delphi Forums, LLC